Vinification and Aging

The grapes from the different plots are fermented separately depending on the varieties, soil type, orientation and altitude. Once the fermentations are completed in concrete tanks, which provides the wine with a concentration of freshness and fruit, the wines are aged in French oak barrels for 8 months.

Soil Type

The grapes come from 7 own estates located in the village of Porrera. All of them are located on the top of seven different mountains, with different orientations and at an altitude of between 500 and 750 meters above sea level, hence the freshness of the wine.
